CALL LAB: NEUTRALIZATION OF MOTHER TONGUE INFLUENCE

* Our mother language that is our mother tongue is the language we grow up speaking. Literally speaking, it means the language our mother taught us; the language we speak since childhood.

* It is popular saying that in India, language changes at every ten miles. This makes it difficult for us to speak in a standard accent as all of us have our own way of speaking English. This is what is called Mother Tongue Influence - when the effect of mother tongue on English becomes evident.

Example: 'iskool', 'istudent', 'plezar', 'request' and etc.

* Accent plays a major role in the business and gathering.

* It is very important to catch up one's accents, understand better and reply with good accent.

Effects of MTI :

- Lack of confidence in speaking English.
- Embarrassment in speaking with others.
- Internalisation of sounds from mother tongue.
- Slow career or academic growth.

DIFFICULT AREAS FOR INDIAN SPEAKERS :

- * Indian speakers acquainted with the phonetic languages often tend to replace English sounds by their Indian equivalents. Wrong accentual patterns prevail leaving important words unaccented in connected speech. There are also the faulty rhythmic patterns, faulty division of a long utterance into tone group, wrong location of the nucleus or the tonic syllable in the tone group which are part of the causes.
- * The difference between general Indian English and educated southern British English is known as Received Pronunciation (R.P.).

GENERAL INDIAN ENGLISH LACKING AREAS :

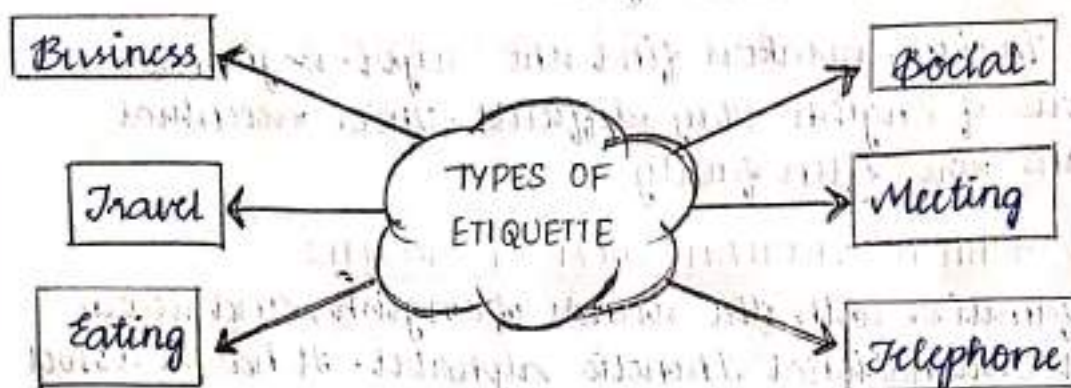

- * Syllabic /l, m, n/ are replaced by the sequences /əl, əm, ən/ or if a high front vowel precedes, by /il, im, in/.
- * People fail to distinguish between /e/ and /æ/ and between /ɔ/ and /ɒ/.
- * It lacks /ʒ/. It is variously replaced by /s/ or /z/.
- * People fail to distinguish between /v/ and /w/.
- * /t, d/ are generally replaced by the retroflex /ɖ/.
- * They also commit mistakes of virrotation.

- * The sounds [tʃ], [dʒ] are made more with the blade than with the tip of the tongue, and also with the lip sounding associated with the R.P. sounds. As a result, they give a less sharp acoustic impression than their R.P. counter parts.
- * Most Indian-speakers find the super-segmented features of English very difficult. Their accentual patterns are often faulty.

TIPS TO ACHIEVE NEUTRALIZATION OF ACCENT:

- * Get familiar with the sounds of English, and learn about International Phonetic alphabet. It has 20 vowel sounds - plus glides - 24 consonants. Although they don't exhaust all the genuine English sounds a natural may utilize.
- * Do some jaw exercise to modulate your voice and accent.
- * Practice translate into perfect.
- * Nothing beats a live show.
- * Listen to the English songs and frequently watching English movies.
- * Listening to news channel is another way to get neutral accent.
- * Do not speak fast. Keep your rate of speech under control.
- * Diction is another important aspect of developing a neutral accent.
- * Read dictionary to learn the meaning of the word spelling and pronunciation.
- * Increase your reading ability by going through newspapers.

* The customary code of (public) politeness behaviour in society or among members of a particular profession or group.

Conversation between three leading companies CEO's following business etiquettes.

KRISHNA: Hello Jyothi! How are you? (Offering a handshake with smile)

JYOTHI: Hello Krishna! I'm good. How are things with you? (Replied with a smile)

KRISHNA: (Politely with hand gestures) Yeah good! Please be seated.

JYOTHI: Sure! Thank you!

Meanwhile Celesty knocking the door gently to get in.

CELESTY: Can I come in? (softly)

KRISHNA: Yes please! Welcome Celesty!

(Celesty walking towards the conference table, meanwhile Jyothi stood (fist) to show respect)

CELESTY: Hi Krishna! Glad to see you after a long time! Am I late?

KRISHNA: You beat the clock correctly Celesty!

KRISHNA: (Pointing towards Jyothi) Meet Miss Jyothi, CEO of Bio Tech Limited! (Celesty gave a hand for shaking to Jyothi) and Jyothi, she is Miss Celesty, CEO of Hetero Pharma Limited! (Pointing towards Celesty)

(Both of them performed hand gestures by shaking hands)

CELESTY: Nice to meet you! Miss Jyothi.

JYOTHI: Thank you! Nice to meet you too!

KRISHNA: Please take your seats.

(Maintaining eye contact with both of them and smile)

KRISHNA: The purpose of our collaboration is that there are many talented students in slum areas who are doing quite excellent in their studies. But their parents couldn't afford for sending them to school. So, we as a well reputed companies, should offer scholarships and encourage them. So, I need your suggestions and opinions regarding how to start this and the further steps on this topic. What do you say?

JYOTHI: It's a great idea! My suggestion is that first people should believe you that you are their helping hand! What do you say Miss Celesty?

CELESTY: Yes! Infact it's a really good idea! But as Miss Jyothi raised a point, people should get aware of this!

(The meeting continues sharing each others ideas)

KRISHNA: Thank you for sparing a valuable time and sharing your ideas.

JYOTHI: My pleasure to come!

CELESTY: Yes! Thank you for making (po) it a success.

(Both of them shook hands with Krishna after one another)

JYOTHI: Nice to meet you, Miss Celesty. Spent a valuable time. Thank you.

CELESTY: Impressed with your ideas. Glad to meet you too.

(After exchanging each other pleasantries)

KRISHNA: Let's plan another day like this.

JYOTHI: Sure.

CELESTY: Yeah! Sure.

(The meeting ends. Jyothi and Celesty leaves the conference hall politely, with a smile)
